

Relationships with children: Protection and Affection

Aisling Reddy

SAOL BEAG

Children's Centre Manager

Introduction

- Legislation
- Attachments
- Relationships
- Supports
- Strengthening Recovery

Legislation for Protection

- Child Care Act 1991.
- Children's First Bill.

Attachment

Picking up and cuddling a baby or young child isn't just a sweet gesture, it is also an important contributor to the mental, social and emotional and physical health of a child.

Relationships

Relationships with both the parent and children are essential in working on positive behaviours and role modelling.

Supports

By putting in the necessary supports on working on relationships will ease a smoother transition for both parents and children in working on building up trust and working on recovery.

Strengthening Recovery

Having the positive influences and securing a positive relationship not only helps the bond between the parent and child but also deflects any stress or worry a parent might feel because of their addiction.

Conclusion

What is missing?